ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HAMPTON:—I shall refer briefly and in a general way to the progress made in the schools of our town the past year. The corps of teachers placed under my supervision have generally been experienced, efficient and competent; the zeal and ability they have brought to the work have improved our schools in almost every essential particular. In the discharge of their arduous and important duties in the school room, teachers are greatly encouraged and aided by the interest manifested by the patrons of the school, and I most earnestly urge all parents and friends of our schools to visit them frequently, make themselves acquainted with the efforts being put forth by those in charge, and speak a word of encouragement or approval; the effect will be most salutary. The discipline in our schools, I am sure has been much improved during the year; this is apparent in the better deportment in the schools rooms, a more ready obedience to the requirements of teachers and to the rules and regulations prescribed. I am confident, too, that this improvement in discipline may be seen by even the casual observer amongst the pupils, in their conduct on the streets in going to and returning from school.

It is an important element in school work, to give scholars the power of expressing clearly their thoughts in writing. Monthly written examinations have been required in the Grammer schools and public examinations have been held at the close of every term. Compositions have been required as often as the work would allow. The accompanying tabular statement will furnish you with important information, and your attention is called to the figures and facts therein contained; the per cent. of term attendance has been good though not quite satisfactory; a day's absence is an irreparable loss to any pupil.

Quackenbos' Grammar has been exchanged for Wells's Grammar, and Raub's Arithmetic has been introduced in place of Hagar's. I was not pleased with the work in Arithmetic. This much-abused study consumes more time, by far than any other one, and the results are unsatisfactory. Pupils, who, although able to work examples in their text books seemed ignorant of the ordinary practical arithmetical computations, and it occurred to me that the absence of mental arithmetic contributed to this result. I considered it important to introduce a vigorous drill in mental work, and the result is a decided improvement, not alone in mathematics, but in other studies; and it has already brought life and light into the school room. However much one may learn from text books, it is but little and unimportant compared with what may be learned by actual practice. Pupils should be trained to observe, and to use the results of their observation.

Physiology has been introduced this year. Enough of Anatomy and Physiology is studied to enable the pupil to understand the laws by which health may be preserved and disease prevented. A feature of the work is the relation of stimulants and narcotics to the laws of health. Correct instruction upon this subject, will, it is believed, tend to diminish the use of stimulants and narcotics and the bad consequences which so frequently follow. Learning early that there is no temperate use of poisons, no intelligent person of to-day questions the importance of such knowledge.

I recommend the union of school districts Nos. 3 and 4, and trust at no distant day it will be accomplished. I would earnestly recommend the repeated employment of experienced and successful teachers, as a frequent change is to be deplored.

Let this community awake to our educational wants. The time has come to establish a high school; it has long been needed to crown the work of the lower grades, by fitting its pupils to be intelligent and useful citizens. Private schools cannot bring education to the doors of all, neither can they assume sufficient independence to accomplish the best results; they can furnish the poor no extra advantages. On the other hand the lower grades can teach but little that expands the mind, and some generally accessible means should be provided for making thinking citizens. A high school must have an influence on the lower grades. Something higher to be obtained is a great incentive, arousing new energies and earnestness, for they see something beyond. Many towns can furnish ample evidence of increased intelligence, promoted industry, and enhanced value of property through the influence of their high schools. An educated class in a community is worth to that community all the additional expense of a higher education.

W. T. MERRILL,

Superintendent of Schools.
